

Our World

Express Gratitude

By ANN BROWN

If every American took time last week to offer sincere gratitude to God, family, friends, and associates for services rendered, we have a happier nation this week.

When we think only of our problems, we create more problems for ourselves — and others. While we are recalling our blessings, we cannot dwell on our problems, and they tend to diminish if not actually disappear.

There is no therapy — not even work — that is as beneficial as genuine gratitude. Because when we are really grateful for our own blessings, we usually feel compelled to show our gratitude by rendering service to others.

And every act of kindness is just as likely to start a chain reaction for good as an act of cruelty is to create a backlash of evil.

A young mother of two babies had just left her husband, and was pitying herself into a complete emotional breakdown because, she said, "nobody loves me."

She was advised to sit down and list all the people who had ever done her a kindness in one column, and across from each name in a second column she was instructed to write down what she had done to show her appreciation.

The unhappy young woman soon had a long list in the first column, which included her parents, brothers, sisters, teachers, neighbors, friends, and last of all her husband. But the second column remained blank.

After a few minutes of silent contemplation, she bundled up her whining babies and went home. For the next few weeks, she was the busiest woman in town: She was determined to make at least one entry beside each name — that was still living.

The penitent's quest involved many letters, countless local visits and phone calls, but primarily service in her own home.

The first letter she received in reply to her missives of gratitude was from her first-grade teacher, a lonely woman wasting away in a nursing home.

"Of all the thousands of children I've taught to read and write," she wrote, "you are the first one who ever said 'Thank you.' Perhaps there are others who have not forgotten me, too. I'll keep your letter always to remind me."

The response to the young mother's expressions of gratitude was overwhelming. Her babies quit whining. Her husband was almost ecstatic over his "new wife." Her parents expressed gratitude that their "little girl" was growing up.

The emotional cripple who found life unendurable while she thought only of herself and her problems found it exciting and fulfilling when she started thinking of others, and the contributions they had made to her life.

This was a great land when the Indians had it. It was grateful Pilgrims who made it a great nation.

The Pilgrims expressed gratitude for freedom, food, shelter, and for the friendly Indians, but most of all for God having spared their lives.

The few survivors of the dangers, disease, and destitution of the first three years in the New World felt favored just to be alive.

Everyone has problems. But as long as we are alive and have plenty of food and the strength to eat it, we have much to be grateful for.

Gratitude that is not expressed, however, brings little benefit to the person who receives the blessing or to the one who gave it.

Package-back Blues

By CARROLL WILSON

My wife's got the back-of-package blues.

Usually, she's calm, unruffled even by yellow baby mess dribbling onto her Sunday dress 10 minutes before church begins.

But, this week she's ruffled, dampened, downright mad.

She's no women's libber but this week she's women's-lib-mad.

The focus of her ire is on Herman Bletzlink, a bearded Chicagoan, who lives in one of those top-story flats all Tiffany-lamped and Persian-rugged.

Herman, his accent somewhere between Midwest nasal and Oxford fake, told me on the phone Friday from his Chicago ad agency office he's the one responsible for my wife's intolerance.

Herman writes, Pepperidge Farms buys and prints, and my wife reads the instructions which appear on the back of those little packages of frozen turnovers.

In a fit of fiscal irresponsibility, my wife purchased a package of the turnovers last week from a local grocer. Now, my wife has never cooked a gourmet meal for the Queen of England, but she passed first grade reading and can boil water without a cookbook.

That evening, my wife decided to treat the family to some of those store-bought pastries and took the turnover package from the refrigerator. She turned the box over, read the instructions, turned beet red and proclaimed loudly enough to convince the neighbors that she is an idiot.

Her wrath, naturally, turned on me. After cooling down, she read me the instructions on the back of the turnover package:

"1. Preheat oven to 475 before taking package from freezer. (How in the heck am I supposed to read the instructions if the package is still in the freezer?" my wife fumed.)

"2. Remove all wrapping. (Do they think I'm going to cook the whole damn package?" she asked.)

"3. Close oven door. (Surely, they can't be serious," she said.) Place frozen turnovers on ungreased baking sheet in center of oven.

"4. Check at 20-25 minutes. Continue baking until golden brown.

"5. Take from baking sheet. Cool on wire rack at least 20 minutes. Serve warm. (I'll serve them anyway I please," she stomped back to the kitchen.)

Suffering mental indigestion, I dialed Herman.

His secretary informed me Herman was busy looking out the window by the numbers, but she'd interrupt.

"Mr. Bletzlink," I said into the phone, "how do you come up with these instructions for the backs of packages?"

"Well," he said and paused.

"1. I roll the covers back at exactly 6 a.m.

"2. I drive for approximately 20 to 25 minutes on the freeway to work.

"3. I get out of my car in the basement garage and come up the elevator, a ride of one to two minutes.

"4. I enter my office and sit down.

"5. I crack my knuckles, uncover my typewriter and punch the keys. Would you like any more detail?"

Ben Bynum, the state representative for Amarillo, deliberately misinterpreted the voter mandate in the Nov. 6 election, when the ballots came up short for his $10,000 a year pay raise.

Bynum says the fact that the voters failed to vote the pay raise means they don't want their legislators to serve full-time.

That would be a pretty twisted interpretation for anyone but a legislator who doesn't want to work more than half-time.

What the voters really said Nov. 6 was that they don't want their legislators to make more money. The voters probably don't believe that legislators work hard enough to make $15,000 a year, which is more than most voters make themselves. I don't believe it myself.

Bynum is simply looking for some excuse.

And, he's baring a degree of immaturity when he throws even a mild tantrum and declares he's going to show us voters by cutting out all these peripheral services he's supposedly been performing.

In plain English, if Bynum didn't want to work, he shouldn't have hired out.

Unless he does some growing up between now and November, Ben shouldn't be sent back down to Austin even if he offers to pay his own way.

Women In MVC Sports

Now Under Consideration

Women's competition on a national intercollegiate basis is coming in a wide range of sports, but the vehicle for that competition is still a question mark, the commissioner of the Missouri Valley Conference said last week.

Mickey Holmes was in Canyon Friday and Saturday to visit the West Texas State University athletic staff and to view the WTSU versus Louisville game Saturday afternoon.

Holmes, who oversees the administration of the conference which includes WTSU, said MVC officials have discussed at previous meetings the involvement of women's teams in the conference and are expected to eye the subject again when they meet next week.

"I think at this point, the women themselves are divided into two school of thought about how this ought to be approached," Holmes said. "Other than the trend for financial support there is divided opinion on whether they want to compete in a conference concept and compete against women or carry it a step farther and compete on an equal basis with men."

Currently, Holmes said, there are no MVC provisions which would preclude a woman from competing on a varsity team.

Some talk in the MVC has centered around establishment of a conference competition in swimming, gymnastics, tennis, golf and volleyball.

Holmes said at least six schools in the MVC are now providing substantial financial support to women's athletic departments. The support ranges from about $30,000 annually to about $65,000.

Holmes said if the institutions themselves are willing to support women's athletic programs financially, "it is logical to develop full conference programs in those areas."

The MVC commissioner said he favors establishment of a conference program in women's competition.

"In the long run it would provide more continuity and more direction and with these would come more efficiency and better spending of money which is at a premium," he said.

But, in spite of what the MVC does or does not do, Holmes believes the pressure on universities is just beginning and will intensify for financial support and more or less equal footing for women's athletic programs.

Turning to other topics, Holmes said he is positive the NCAA will pass legislation requiring conferences to be made up of universities which offer eight major sports rather than six.

And, he said, the NCAA has already said women's sports would not be eligible for such designation.

He said a membership committee is to meet early this week to come up with a final recommendation on a new member of the Valley, to replace Memphis State which dropped out of the MVC last spring.

Holmes would not identify any of the possible candidates for entrance to the conference, but said the new member will be named in mid-December.

Death Expert

Due In City

Dr. Elizabeth Kubler Ross, author of the book On Death and Dying, will be on the West State University campus Tuesday to discuss care of the dying.

The nationally-known psychiatrist will be sponsored on campus by the West Texas School of Nursing and the United Campus Ministry.

She and her husband Dr. Emanuel Ross founded the Ross Medical Association in Chicago. Elizabeth Ross donates her time to counseling terminally ill patients and their relatives.

Dr. Ross will address WT nursing students on adjusting to terminal illness and problems for hospital staff members in working with the dying patient. Her campus lectures will be Tuesday at 9:30 and 11 a.m. in the Activities Center Ballroom.

Dr. Ross will address representatives of the Amarillo medical and ministerial community on Monday. The all-day meeting at the Psychiatric Pavilion will include lectures by Dr. Ross on the needs of a dying patient, stages of dying, children and death, and the question of prolonging life.

The Tuesday lectures are open to the public. There is no admission charge.

News To Offer

Car Pool Ads

In an effort to make car pooling easier for Canyon residents who live here and work in Amarillo and for students who live in Amarillo and commute to Canyon for classes at WTSU, the Canyon News is offering a free bulletin-board section in its classified section.

News Editor Carroll Wilson said beginning with Sunday's issue of the paper the News will devote a special heading and column in the classified section for residents and students to use to aid them in finding rides to and from Amarillo.

Wilson said the service will be free, as an effort to aid residents caught in the energy squeeze or who desire to save gasoline.

Noting that car pooling is being urged for Amarillo commuters to WTSU, Wilson said he hopes students particularly will take advantage of the special section to seek out other students who could form car pools for the 15-mile drive to and from Canyon.

"In view of the fact that about 2500 students at WTSU commute from Amarillo or from some other Panhandle area town, we feel that such a service would be a real benefit for those who may face gasoline problems," he said. "The newspaper is really the only effective bulletin board for this kind of thing and we are glad we can offer the service."

Bulletins for the special section will be run in each edition of the News for one month or until the person who ran the bulletin cancels it.

Bulletins should be not more than 10 words with telephone number and entire address counting as one word.

The special section will be labeled Car Pools in the News classified section.

Persons desiring to place bulletins for car pools in the News should call 655-7121 before 10 a.m. on Wednesday for the Thursday paper and before 10 a.m. on Saturday for the Sunday paper.

Dance Program Slated

"An Evening of Dance," a program featuring a selection of classical and modern styles, is scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday in the Branding Iron Theatre.

The program, under the direction of Connie Windows, will feature dance arrangements of such popular tunes as "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang," "The Theme from Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," "Hot-Battered Popcorn," "Born Free" and "Theme from Love Story." Also programmed are excerpts from a Russian Ballet.

Highlighting the program will be a piece entitled, "The Strangest Dream" with musical arrangement by Mindy Brewster and Lee Riley.

Others performing in the program are Dalton Stewart, Debbie Bray, Janice Rhodes, Pat Summers, Debbie Spies, Susan Stewart, Anne Criswell, Nancy Clark, Jill Burton and Gilmore Williams.

"We could pay our workers that much if we had the business to go with it. And the only way we could get that kind of business would be if Canyon residents and WT students would do their shopping here in the community."

But he was emphatic about one thing. If students and residents switched their business from Amarillo to Canyon, he said, the change would result in a wage hike for many employees in local commercial concerns.

Prompts Deadline
For Xmas Mail

Postmaster Lee Roy Moreland last week urged Canyon residents to post their domestic and foreign Christmas mail one to two weeks earlier than the Postal Service originally recommended, so that the energy shortage will not interfere with on-time deliveries.

The new deadline for posting domestic first-class Christmas mail is Dec. 8 rather than Dec. 15, as previously announced. Domestic surface parcels, except those for Alaska and Hawaii, should be mailed by Dec. 3, instead of Dec. 10. To Alaska and Hawaii, mail by Nov. 23 instead of Nov. 30.

Air mail parcels and letters within the United States (except Alaska and Hawaii) should now be posted no later than Dec. 15, rather than Dec. 21, to Alaska and Hawaii, mail by Dec. 13, rather than Dec. 20.

"The seriousness of the fuel shortage to the Postal Service is underlined," Moreland said, "by the fact that in addition to the fuel consumed by commercial air carriers, we require approximately 350 million gallons of fuel to travel 2.25 billion miles delivering the 90 billion pieces of mail that flow through the system each year. Our requirement for the month of December alone is 45 million gallons."

Roommates Sew For Pleasure

By CAROL YOUNG

Room 8 at LaCasa Canyon Convalescent Home is buzzing with activity and the lively quips tossed back and forth by the roommates within. Mrs. Bethel Palmer from Happy and Miss Vera Mae Osborne from Amarillo share the room and the projects they have undertaken to pass the time.

"We decided that we didn't want to just sit out in the lobby and stare at the floor all day. So, we asked for some material and started making these things," said Miss Osborne when asked why they started their projects.

Mrs. Palmer's reply to the same question was, "A lot of people just sit around and complain about noise and how lonely they are. I'm not going to start that even if I am as old as Joe's turkey."

One of the items they make is a potholder hanger in the shape of a wide brimmed hat. A bar attached underneath the hat has three hooks with a potholder on each one. Miss Osborne machine sews the trim on the ruffles for the hbm and Mrs. Palmer does the handwork.

At first, all the sewing was done by hand because there just wasn't a machine available. Mrs. Zula Uesery, a retired Canyon school teacher, viewed the situation and came up with a machine for the ladies. Since then, she drops in regularly to visit the roommates.

What makes the pleasure they receive, Miss Osborne said, "I'm so tired at night from sewing all day that I sleep real well." It seems that before the projects were started, both ladies had trouble falling asleep at night.

Another creation Miss Osborne handles the machine sewing on is quilt tops. So far she has finished a few and had them sold before they were finished. The only problem with the quilt tops is that all that can be made is the top. A lack of space and equipment keeps Miss Osborne and Mrs. Palmer from actually quilting and finishing the quilts. For a double bed size quilt, for a charge is $10. Miss Osborne related that she would be happy to take orders for quilt tops if the material were supplied and the pattern was not too difficult, or interested parties called or just stopped by and see what she had available.

One other gift type or practical item the ladies have whipped up is a shoe bag that looks like a pair of trousers complete with pockets. Each leg has space for a shoe and they thought that these would be good for people who travel or that just want to keep a special pair of shoes safe and clean.

Although they could find no one else interested in participating with them in the sewing projects, other residents of the home stop in to see what is going on and how the various projects are coming along.

Anyone that has material scraps sitting around gathering dust or material they bought and decided not to use would be more than welcome to drop these things off at the home. Those wishing to look at or purchase the potholders or shoe bags, or to place an order for a quilt top may do so by stopping by LaCasa Canyon. Miss Osborne and Mrs. Palmer will also welcome anyone that wants to visit them.

By the time the average American child reaches the age of 15, he has witnessed 18,000 individual murders on the television set, not including beatings, stabblings, muggings, rapes and other forms of mayhem.

This was the finding of a Congressional Committee last year. The body count includes casualties whose demise most tube watchers didn't even realize they witnessed. Like the luckless fellow Marshall Dillon guns down at the opening sequence of "Gunsmoke" each week.

By the time a child graduates to prime time TV viewing (which averages about eight incidents of violence per hour), he has been prepared for grown-up brutality through his Saturday morning cartoon watching.

Some experts have even declared that the most violent of all programs on television are children's cartoons.

A study of Saturday morning network programs in 1971 found three of every 10 dramatic segments saturated with violence, a total of 71 had at least one instance of human violence.

Recently, television networks have exerted themselves somewhat in cleaning up the visual nursery of horrors that so many unthinking parents send their children to play in every Saturday morning.

But the excellent children's shows, like "Sesame Street," "Electric Company" and the enchanting "Make A Wish" are rare treats sandwiched between thick slices of pure schmaltz.

The networks can dish this murky fare out to youngsters in the same way makers of dog food can turn their product — with the comforting knowledge that the purchaser isn't going to sample the goods.

The depressing thing about it is that Saturday morning television doesn't have to be the way it is.

late and make a bedtime for anything it had to offer, be it Howdy Doody, Ruff 'n Ready or Popeye. We were malleable Neilson stuff. We took it as it came.

Watching my six-year-old nephew glued before the TV set on Saturday morning, I've surmised things haven't changed much.

And things won't be changing much unless parents sacrifice a few hours of late weekend sleeping to sit down and watch the stuff their kids are watching for a spell.

If they don't like what they see — and chances are, they won't — they should inveigh upon the networks through letters to clean up the nursery. And if letters don't do the job, parents can aim their sights at the Achilles heel of all television shows: the Nielson ratings.

When I was growing up, I remember how we all relished the "Our Gang" and "Young Rascals" comedies on television. Those old 1930's flicks captured our young imaginations because we were intrigued by all the wonderful things that bunch of neighborhood kids cooked up to entertain themselves. Sometimes it was a vaudeville review, with Daria doing a razzamatazz tap dance and Alfalfa rendering a shaky crooning. Sometimes it was a circus or a pet show or an essay contest or any number of carefully planned amusements.

What was important was that Spanky and his gang were kids like us who were having a smashing good time creating their own kind of fun themselves.

And they didn't even have a TV set at home.

Referring to those 1930 vintage films has reminded me that one of the most popular shows on TV today is "The Waltons," a tale of a family growing up poor, happy and tube-less during the Depression years.

Some have put the show's appeal to a faddish wave of nostalgia that has beset the American public. But the series seems to have a much deeper impact on people. It captivates the elders who remember those lean years, as well as the younger generation who were never forced to "make a nickel buy a dime's

TV Footage Is Subpoenaed

The television film footage of three Amarillo television stations has been subpoenaed for a preliminary hearing set Tuesday in 151st district court here by the attorney for an Amarillo man charged with conspiring to possess and sell marijuana.

Attorney John Broadfoot has asked for a change of venue for his client, Reginald Bassett, according to Dist. Atty. George Dowlen and the television film will be used in a hearing on that matter before Judge Don Dean.

The hearing will begin at 1:30 p.m. for Bassett and four other men charged on similar indictments.

Subpoenaed into court will be Paul Roberts of KGNC-TV, Ron Slover of KFDA-TV and Bill Tell of KVIH-TV.

Trainers for Bassett and Larry Stephenson, James Judge, Dan O'Connor and Ernest Walker are set for the week of Dec. 10 in Judge Dean's court.

The five were arrested in mid-August after the Randall County Grand Jury returned indictments against them. The five are charged with conspiring to possess an amount of marijuana exceeding four ounces and conspiring to sell the marijuana.

City Girl Scouts To Provide Baby-Sitting Service In Dec.

Ten girls from Girl Scout Troop 174 have gone into the baby-sitting business to earn money for a winter ski trip and to make shopping a more leisurely affair for Canyon parents.

Billing themselves as Santa's Helpers, the girls will provide a baby-sitting service for three Saturdays in December to allow moms and dads to shop for Christmas gifts or possibly just to get away from it all.

Jan Park, of the troop said the girls will baby-sit from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Dec. 1, 8 and 15 at the girl scout house for local children.

Proceeds from the baby-sitting will go into a fund to finance a ski trip to Red River for the girls in February.

Charge for the baby-sitting service will be 50 cents an hour for the first child in a family with an additional 25 cents charged per hour per child.

Jan said if children are brought to the house to stay through the lunch period, parents should provide a sack lunch. Dessert will be provided by the scouts, as will drinks.

Adult supervision will also be on hand throughout the days.

For the larger children, games, toys and organized activities will be provided. For the smaller children, the girls will have a separate nursery.

Jan said the girls in the troop have just completed their course in first aid and are beginning their course on child care.

She said reservations for the Saturday stays are urged and may be made by calling 655-7518 or 655-4268. Reservations are not necessary, however.

Winners of a Turkey Trot contest held prior to the Thanksgiving holidays at Canyon Junior High School were (standing, from left) Steve Zanchettin, third place boy; Cindy Baldrige, second place girl; Merry Johnson, first place girl; Greg Hinder, second place boy and Luna Cruz, first place boy. Kneeling are the three students who distinguished themselves by coming in last in the event. They are, from left, Sam Olson, Jackie Skarke and Monica Friemel.

Seminars Stress Awareness For Teachers At University

A series of seminars on cultural awareness and group techniques for educators are being conducted at West Texas State University during the 1973-74 school year.

"We are encouraging teachers, administrators and anyone within a 100 mile radius of WT to apply to attend one of the seminars," said Dr. Jack Nance, associate professor of education and director of the program.

On Dec. 14-15 "Mexican-American Curriculum" will be the seminar topic.

The "chief objective is to present a variety of available materials and concepts emphasizing the role of the Mexican-American in all aspects of school curricula," Nance said.

"It is further hoped that teachers will learn methods of integrating these materials and concepts within their own multicultural classroom setting," he added.

"Group Techniques in the Classroom," an exploration of the possible uses of small group work for effective and cognitive learning in the classroom, is scheduled for Jan. 25-26.

A study of the three major ethnic groups in Texas — Mexican-American, black and Anglo — is the basis for the "Cultural Awareness" seminar March 8-9.

"Participants will be encouraged to explore harmonious interplay and separate contributions of the three major ethnic groups."

"They will try to expose the inherent differences among the three cultures as a means for improved understanding. The entire process will be classroom oriented and several small group activities adaptable for classroom use will be employed in the seminar," Nance said.

The seminars are the cooperative effort of the WTSU College of Education and the University of Texas Center for Public School Ethnic Studies.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Nance at 656-2493 or Mrs. Adrienne Pennington at 656-3233, Canyon.

Friendship Class Hears Review Of Ann Brown's Book

"The Scarlet Thread," a newly published book by Canyon author Ann Brown, was reviewed by Barbara Johnson at the meeting of the Friendship Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church of Canyon.

Members of the class met in the home of the president, Bettie Davis, last Tuesday evening for a salad supper. Margaret Rawlings led the opening prayer and gave thanks for the meal.

Guests present were Barbara Johnson, Mary Parker, Helen Davis, LaNelle Johnson, and special guest Frank Wighton.

Members present were Loudene West, Eloise Wighton, Margaret Boyce, Judy Willis, Nora Lillian, Betty LaGrone, Margaret Rawlings, Jean Galloway, Bettie Davis and Ann Brown.

Ohioans Tour Teaching Center

Two Ohio educators toured the facilities of the West Texas State University Teacher Center Project for competency-based teacher education Wednesday.

Drs. Ron Wise and Jim Currans, assistant professors of education at Baldwin-Wallace College, visited West Texas State as the first stop on a tour of institutions already involved in competency-based teacher education.

Baldwin-Wallace, with an enrollment of 2,100, has approximately 45 per cent of its student body involved in studies directed toward education, Wise said.

The Ohio college received an $89,325 grant from the Cleveland Foundation to develop such a program which continues through 1974-75.

West Texas State began its third year of student participation in the performance-based program this fall.

WTSU was one of four original teacher centers established in 1970 after the Texas State Board of Education set Sept. 1, 1977 as a recommended deadline for the adoption of such a system throughout the state.

The two Ohio educators toured such WTSU facilities as the educational media laboratory and the learning center and said that West Texas State appeared to be "16 years ahead of us" in its competency-based program.

"I am impressed with the air of total commitment to the program, and I am most impressed with the openness of the people involved. They seem to want to help us not make the same mistakes they did," Currans said.

Wise and Currans will visit the University of Houston before returning to Ohio.

New Outreach Worker Hired For Local Planned Parenthood

Assuming duties this week as Canyon outreach worker for the Panhandle Planned Parenthood Association is Pam Wanamaker. She replaces Susan Barnett, who has held the post since early last September.

Mrs. Wanamaker is the wife of Dr. Sturdy Wanamaker, associate professor of physical education at West Texas State University.

She holds a bachelor's degree in elementary education with concentration in PE from WTSU, and is currently working toward a master's degree from that institution.

Until recently, Mrs. Wanamaker served as a teacher's assistant in PE at Rex Reeves Elementary School. A native of Nacogdoches, Mrs. Wanamaker taught swimming classes for ten years in that city prior to moving here with her husband in 1968.

Her goals for the Canyon office of Planned Parenthood, she says, include an intensification of the venereal disease education program both on the college and high school level. Coinciding with this effort will be the presentation of the second in a series of VD seminars for high school students to be presented at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 11 at the WTSU Episcopal Center.

Mrs. Wanamaker says she will also be seeking men to serve on the Planned Parenthood patient advisory board, a counseling group that currently consists entirely of women in the community.

Dr. and Mrs. Ray A. Malzahn, 1700 Hillcrest Dr., are the parents of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Kuykendall, northwest of Canyon, are the groom's parents.

Mike Lacewell, served as organist and Mrs. Charles Wright was flutist. They performed Siciliano by Bach, the wedding march by Wagner, and as recessional, Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The church was decorated with palms and baskets of chrysanthemums in shades of yellow, gold, bronze and orange, with a wedding banner and candelabra.

Miss Kathy Dilworth, Amarillo, was maid of honor and Miss Janet Malzahn, sister of the bride, Canyon, was bridesmaid.

They wore floor length gowns of white, gold and green flocked sheer over gold taffeta with high waists, accented by gold velvet ribbon, rounded necklines with stand-up collars and long set-in sleeves caught at the wrist in deep cuffs. A ruffle flounce at the hemline completed the gowns. They wore green picture hats with gold velvet bands caught in back with clusters of gold chrysanthemums and baby's breath and carried baskets of chrysanthemums and straw flowers in mixed colors with matching streamers.

Kenneth Coulson, Amarillo, was best man and Dean Frigo, Amarillo, was groomsman with Tommy Kuykendall, brother of the groom, as ring bearer.

Clifford Prichard, Canyon and Dean Frigo served as ushers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white dotted swiss sheer over taffeta with a fitted waist trimmed with white velvet high collar and a yoke effect given by a ruffle overlay with embroidery trim and seed pearls. Long sheer sleeves caught at the forearm in deep cuffs and a ruffle flounce at the hemline, trimmed with embroidery and pearls complemented the gown. Her veil of illusion fell to shoulder length from a headpiece of flowers. She carried a white prayer book topped by a cascade of yellow roses, white daisy chrysanthemums, and baby's breath and a linen handkerchief with tatted edging belonging to her mother, made by her grandmother.

At a reception following the ceremony held in the fellowship hall of the church, a table covered with a floor length cloth featured a four-tiered cake, punch, nuts, and rosette mints that were served to the guests. Miss Gail Thompson, and Miss Pat Kuykendall, sister of the groom, served cake and punch and Miss Donna Kuykendall, sister of the groom, registered guests.

For a wedding trip, the bride chose a navy blue suit with pleated skirt and Eisenhower styled jacket and wore a corsage of yellow roses and white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Jimmy Carlos Wilhite
nee Brenda Helen Shell

Shell-Wilhite Vows Pledged

Brenda Helen Shell became the bride of Jimmy Carlos Wilhite in a double ring ceremony held Nov. 21 at the Joseph A. Hill Memorial Chapel, with Rev. Baldwin J. Stribling, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Canyon, officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Francis Shell, 13 Hunsley Hills Blvd., are the parents of the bride.

Mrs. Dick Dawdy provided organ and music and accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Terry Landrum, soloists, in The Lord's Prayer, We're Only Just Begun and The Twelfth of Never.

Twin baskets of red and hot pink roses, white gladioli, and pink mums, flanked the altar. An arched candelabrum behind the altar provided candlelight for the ceremony. Glass candelabra decked with greenery and burgundy velvet ribbon enhanced the decorations.

Mrs. Dennis Hunt, Amarillo, was matron of honor, and Mrs. Helen Mitchell, Canyon, was bridesmaid. They wore floor length empire trimmed with hot pink velvet gowns with hot pink satin featuring a train and matching slippers. Their bouquets were nosegays of hot pink mums, roses, and burgundy velvet streamers, centered with a tapered pink candle.

Perry Masterson of Canyon was best man and Mike Downing, Canyon, served as groomsman.

Ushers were Tony Clements, cousin of the groom, Amarillo, and Benny Richardson, Canyon.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of off white antique satin with empire waist, lace collar, and full sleeves caught at the wrist in a deep cuff trimmed with Belgian lace. The full bell skirt fell to a hemline of scalloped lace and featured scattered appliques of lace and seed pearls. A detachable train bordered in lace with appliques enhanced the gown. Her veil of illusion fell from a chapel cap of lace and seed pearls.

For "something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue," the bride wore her maternal grandmother's diamond watch for something old, a gold cross given to her mother by her father for her wedding for something borrowed, diamond stud earrings, a gift from the bride's father for something new, a garter given to her by the bridesmaids for something blue, and for luck, a penny in her shoe with the date of her birth.

A reception following the ceremony was held at the Canyon Community Center. The bride's table was covered with white satin and tulle and centered with a candelabrum decked with hot pink and burgundy roses and white mums. Fern and hot pink and burgundy velvet ribbon trimmed the ends of the table. A three tiered wedding cake with roses, doves and sugar lace, topped with bells was featured at the bride's table. Traditional chocolate cake was served at the groom's table.
